FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK

“Owe no debt to anyone except the debt that binds us to love one another.”

Dear Sisters and Brothers,

Life is full of debt, obligations and things that we owe to others in a spirit of duty. Some of the things that we owe to others include tuition, taxes, credit card debt, utility bills, work for our wages, insurance, health care costs...and the list goes on and on. On another level, although less obvious, there is a whole host of other things that are even more important that we must render to others in a spirit of generosity: time, talent, respect, reverence, fidelity, honesty, care, concern, consideration, kindness, patience, justice, peace, reconciliation...and this list, too, goes on and on.

If we stop to collectively consider all the things that we owe to others, it can be more than a little overwhelming. Perhaps it is best to summarize it as does St. Paul when he advises us to “owe no debt to anyone except the debt that binds us to love one another”. The debt of love – the bond of love – is not only the most important obligation that we owe to one another, but it also includes all the other things, virtues and actions that we owe to others...that we must render to others.

May the words of today’s Scriptures strengthen us in our resolve to grow in a loving attitude toward all we say and do each day. In this way, Jesus is better able to live once again in our love for one another.

On September 8th our Mother Church celebrates the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary. we rejoice that God prepared Mary from the beginning for her unique mission as the Mother of His Son. Her birth is a sign of hope: through Mary, God’s plan of salvation draws near to humanity. Mary teaches us that holiness begins with a humble heart open to God. Let us imitate her faith, obedience, and love, and ask her to help our families and parish community remain united in Christ.

May Mary, Mother of the Church, teach us to correct with love, forgive generously, and welcome Christ into every relationship.

Labor Day: The Dignity of Work and the Catholic Warning Against Socialism

As we celebrate Labor Day, the Catholic Church invites us to reflect on something very important: “the dignity of human work”. Work is not a punishment. From the beginning, God gave humanity the responsibility to cultivate and care for His creation. Through work, we cooperate with God, provide for our families, develop our God-given talents, and contribute to the good of society.

The Church therefore defends the rights and dignity of workers. Workers deserve just wages, safe working conditions, reasonable hours, and the freedom to organize and defend their legitimate interests. At the same time, workers have the responsibility to work honestly, faithfully, and conscientiously. But Labor Day also gives us an opportunity to remember the Catholic Church’s serious warning concerning socialism and communism, especially when these ideologies deny God, reject private property, subordinate the individual to the State, or seek to abolish the legitimate freedom and responsibility of families and individuals.

Pope Leo XIII, in Rerum Novarum, defended the right to private property and warned against a system that would place excessive control of economic life in the hands of the State. Pope Pius XI later condemned communism as fundamentally opposed to Christian truth because of its materialistic and atheistic foundations.

The Catechism teaches that the Church has rejected “totalitarian and atheistic ideologies” associated with communism and socialism because they contradict the dignity and freedom of the human person.

But we must be equally clear: Catholic teaching is not a defense of greed or an unregulated economy. Capitalism also becomes morally unacceptable when profit is placed above human dignity, when workers are exploited, when families cannot obtain just wages, or when the poor are forgotten.

The Catholic vision is different. It is built upon human dignity, private property, solidarity, responsibility, justice, and charity. The economy must serve the human person and the common good.

Therefore, on this Labor Day, let us reject both godless collectivism and selfish individualism. Let us build a society where work is respected, families are strengthened, workers receive justice, entrepreneurs can create and prosper, the poor are protected, and human freedom is respected.

Let us remember: our dignity does not come from our job, our salary, our possessions, or the State. Our dignity comes from God, because every human person is created in His image and likeness.

May God bless our workers, our families, our employers, and our nation—and may He give us the wisdom to build an economy founded not merely on profit or political ideology, but on truth, justice, human dignity, and love of neighbor.

~ “Emphasized that every worker acts as the hand of Christ in creation and goodness”.
